

UCD James Joyce Library

Washroom solutions worth writing home about.

Petal's many decades of experience in the manufacture and installation of washroom solutions for the education sector was called upon for this refurbishment of a prestigious library at University College, Dublin.

Petal worked closely with Reddy Architecture & Urbanism – the project architect on the scheme to achieve a washroom space sensitive to the cultural heritage of its surrounding, with a modern, welcoming vibe for the many students who occupy the space. Petal's Thor Plus cubicles with 2.4m height and minimum floor clearance ensure a feeling of privacy in the cubicles and the wood grain laminate finish is replicated to the interior in Petal's P300 Advanced Panel System for duct & access panelling.

The solid surface vanity trough was chosen in a concrete style effect, achieving a grounded and earthy vibe. Portrait style oval mirrors achieve a dramatic reflection of the full height cubicle doors and are in keeping with the vertical approach to wall tiling. The black laminate under panelling of the vanity units achieves a further depth to the aesthetic.

Location
UCD James Joyce Library

Contractor
T&I Fit-Out Contractor

Cubicle System
Thor Plus

Client
University College Dublin

Sector
Education

Architect
Reddy Architecture & Urbanism

Bespoke portrait oval mirrors

Wood grain effect laminate finish

Full height Thor Plus cubicles for maximum privacy

Solid surface vanity trough